GUIDELINES FOR WRITERS

1. Authors are requested to bear in mind that Dharma Deepika is an academic journal with a broad readership of scholars and non-scholars from various religious backgrounds.
2. Authors should write in terms that the readers can understand and appreciate, but that scholars will recognize as factual and up-to-date.
3. The sociological method of documentation is preferred in which documentation is primarily through the bibliography.

Example (Bibliography):

Marshman, John Clark
1859 The Life and Times of Carey, Marshman and Ward. Embracing the History of the Serampore Mission. London: Longman, Brown,Green,Longman& Roberts.

Example (Text):

Carey's Bengali Grammer, published in 1801, is credited with creating a vernacular Bengali literary base (Das Gupta 1993:187). Thereby he sparked a cultural renewal which was to have far-reaching ramifications through social reforms and political movements leading eventually to the demise of colonialism and to the rise of independent states in South Asia.

The long-standing controversy between the East India Company investors and the supporters of the missionary effort, documented in numerous accrimonioius letters and publications (e.g. Marshman 1859), centers ultimately in missionary opposition to exploitation and their engaging in humanitatrian efforts detrimental to the rapaciacioius greed of the colonialists. Their humanitarianism endeared the missionaries to the missions, states Abhijit Dutta (1989-152). Missionary opposition to exp0loitation is part of the background of South Asian independence.

4. Endnotes, rather than footnotes, should be used sparingly for important questions that the writer does not address which are beyond the scope of his her article.
5. It is important to acknowledge all sources. Quotations should be exact and must be documented. Short quotations should be enclosed in 'inverted commas.' Long quotations (more than 4 lines) should be indented and single-spaced.
6. Omissions (ellipsis) in quotations are to be indicated be 3 dots (...) but at the end of a sentence by 4 dots including the full stop (....), followed by the inverted comma. Omissions of a paragraph or more should be shown by a line of dots; however frequently or long omissions are not encouraged.
7. For other questions of form and style, the standard guide by Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses and Dissertations (University of Chicago Press, 1955), is recommended. Another helpful book is The Elements of Style by William Strunk, Jr,. and E.B.White (New York: Macmillan, 1959).
8. British rules of punctuation and spelling will be followed in preference to American ones.
9. Book reviews should follow the format set in this journal and are to include publication details, pages and price. The object is not a full summary of the content so much as an evaluation, opinion, critique, recommendation to interest the reader.

CHRISTIANITY IS INDIAN:
THE EMERGENCE OF AN INDIGENOUS COMMUNITY
Edited by ROGER E. HEDLUND

Countering the popular notion that Christianity is a western religion this book presents historical and theological analysis to drive home the truth about the "Indianess" of Christianity in India.

ISBN 81-7214-561-6 • ©2000 • xx + 463pages • Paperback • $18, £15, Rs.175.00

QUEST FOR IDENTITY:
INDIA'S CHURCHES OF INDIGENOUS ORIGIN:
THE "LITTLE TRADITION" IN INDIAN CHRISTIANITY
By ROGER E. HEDLUND

In a context of Religious Plurality this book provides an identity for Christians in India.

An Invaluable Resource for Missologists, Mission Workers, Theological Students & all those Interested in issues related to contemporary Mission!!

'Missiology for the 21st Century' is a collection of essays that seek to clarify the awesome responsibility of mission in the 21st Century. It provides an in-depth discussion into the rationale, history and context of contemporary mission. Written by both scholars and practitioners of mission, it reflects both theories and praxis. Thus it is a valuable tool to facilitate rigorous thought and discussion leading to responsible action.

"If one seeks to have a comprehensive overview of the mission of the Church by reading just one book, this is the one to read!"
